TROOP TRAINS ARE CARRYING
HEAVY ARTILLERYMOBILIZATION OF THE CHINESE
ARMY CONTINUES
UNABATED70 ARMORED CARS OF CHINESE
PASSED NORTHWARD TODAY
THROUGH HARBIN

Harbin, Manchuria, July 16.—(U.P.)—Travelers arriving here today reported that the Russians are massing heavily along the border.

Many troop trains have passed Chita, some of them carrying heavy artillery, it was reported. It also was stated unofficially that 50,000 White Russians, including thousands of former Czarist troops at Shanghai, Tientsin, Mukden, Harbin and elsewhere, have offered their services to China through the "White" military organizations.

2,000 SOVIET TROOPS
CROSSED BORDER

Harbin, Manchuria, July 16.—Unconfirmed reports reaching here today stated that 2,000 Soviet troops crossed the Manchurian border near Blagovieschensk but retreated at the approach of a Chinese battalion.

The mobilization of the Chinese army continued. Seventy armored cars passed through Harbin northward today. The Chinese forces along the Russo-Manchurian border were estimated as being in the neighborhood of 60,000.

Harbin was filled with wild rumors today. A strict censorship prohibited distribution of printed news of the developments in Manchuria.

Several additional Russian officials have been arrested and deported since the Soviet ultimatum was issued to China.

ZERO HOUR NEARS FOR END OF ULTIMATUM

By EUGENE LYONS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Moscow, July 16.—Russia's patriotic fervor rose to a high pitch today as the zero hour approached for the expiration of the Soviet Union's three-day ultimatum to the Chinese government at Nanking.

The ultimatum which was prompted by China's seizure of the Chinese Eastern railway in Manchuria dominated all thought and conversation throughout the far-flung Soviet Union. And most of the citizens minced no words in demanding that the government take a firm stand in its controversy with the far eastern republic.

"We do not want war, but we are ready to leave our plants and factories and take up arms in defense of our proletarian fatherland," was the burden of thousands of speeches, resolutions and editorials here and in the provinces throughout the Russians.

Scores of parades were held here and elsewhere against China's seizure of the railway. Tens of thousands of paraders marched through the streets, sang revolutionary songs, repeated the allegiance to the government, and denounced the Chinese "imperialists."

MANCHURIA HOLDS FAST TO CHINESE EASTERN ROAD

Shanghai, July 16.—Manchuria continued to assume complete control of the Chinese Eastern railway today in spite of the Soviet ultimatum to the Mukden and Nanking governments, according to reports reaching here from Harbin.

The reports added the Chinese were proceeding with the ousting of all Soviet officials from their posts in the railway organization including the southern section of the line. The western branch, the reports stated, was being patrolled by Chinese troops in armored cars.

At the same time it was learned that in spite of the three-day time limit which Russia placed upon its ultimatum, the Chinese government probably will make no reply until Friday.

The government of China generally displayed a placid attitude regarding the Russian ultimatum.

Most of the foreign observers regard the situation with far more seriousness than do the Chinese. They believe the nationalist government is placing too much false reliance in the supposed Japanese opposition to any Soviet action in Manchuria, regardless of what the provocation may be.

Shanghai, China, July 16.—Reports from Nanking today indicate that the nationalist government of China will not reply to Soviet Russia's 3-day ultimatum on the Harbin incident within the time limit set by Russia.

An official of the Kud Min agency said the central authorities are under no obligation to have agreed upon a course of action but are awaiting arrival of Dr. C. T. Wang, foreign minister, before proceeding.

A spokesman for the state council said today the text of the ultimatum had not arrived at a late hour last night and that he was uncertain whether it had yet been received.

Another Huge Trimotored Plane for Air Meet

BABIES ARE NO
SECURITY FOR BOARD BILLS

Camden, N. J., July 16.—(U.P.)—Babies cannot be held as security for board bills, Judge Samuel Shat ruled here in restoring the two-year-old Catherine Murphy to her mother, Mrs. Patrick Murphy.

The child was left with Miss Mary Hannigan in May, 1928, with the understanding that $10 per week would be paid for the child's support. Mrs. Murphy asked for her child, but Miss Hannigan said she had $300 coming to her, and had the mother arrested for abandoning the baby.

POLISH AVIATORWHEN "MARSHAL PILSUDSKI"
CRASHED, AZORES NATIVES
EXTRICATED KUBALALOCAL CHEMIST ADMINISTERED
FIRST AID, PUT SEVERAL STITCHES IN HIS FACE

Horta, Azores, July 16.—(U.P.)—Quick action by the natives of Santa Cruz village, most of whom had never seen an airplane before saved Casimir Kubala, co-pilot of the ill-fated Marshal Pilsudski from the death which overtook Major Louis Idzikowski when the machine exploded, it was learned here today.

When the plane, which was attempting to fly from Paris to the United States, crashed in the mountain town the inhabitants overcame their fear of the blazing monster and rushed to drag the pilots from their cockpit.

Both men were found strapped to their seats. Major Kubala was removed easily but the rescuers were driven back by the flames before Idzikowski, whose legs were pinned in the wreckage, could be extricated.

First aid was given to Kubala by the local chemist, who put several stitches in his face before he was taken to a hospital.

Major Kubala was expected to arrive at Horta today aboard the Polish cadet ship Iskra, which also carried the body of Idzikowski.

By PEGGY WARD
(United Press Special Correspondent)

Horta, Azores, July 16.—Major Casimir Kubala was unconscious in the cockpit of the Polish biplane Marshal Pilsudski before it crashed on Graciosa Island of the Azores group, it was revealed here today when Major Kubala and the body of his comrade, Major Louis Idzikowski, pilot of the plane, arrived aboard the Polish cadet training ship Iskra.

The cause of the explosion which killed Idzikowski was also revealed. The Poles who were attempting to fly from Paris to New York dumped their gasoline before landing after motor trouble had developed and the fumes, which had overcome Kubala, exploded as the motor was throttled down and backfired as the plane skidded the ground.

The fact that Kubala was unconscious perhaps saved his life as he was thrown clear of the plane when it overran a sharp incline just at the moment of the explosion.

The body of Idzikowski lay on the deck of the Iskra as the training ship came into Horta harbor this morning. It was covered with the Polish flag and an honor guard of Polish sailors stood at attention beside it.

Major Kubala, whom I saw for a few moments, is in such a weak condition that he is unable to talk. Both of his eyes are swollen almost shut. There are deep cuts on his face and neck.

Kubala will probably be put ashore here for hospital treatment. Officers of the Iskra are awaiting orders from Warsaw which they expect will direct them to bring Idzikowski's body home for a national funeral.

Federal Farm Board Turns Its Attention to Movement of Current Wheat Crop of NationSELECTION OF 8TH MEMBER
EXPECTED SOONMID-JULY CROP FORECAST OF
DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE
CONSIDEREDSEVERAL MEMBERS OF BOARD HAVE HAD EXPERIENCE IN WHEAT MARKETING

By LAWRENCE SULLIVAN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 16.—The federal farm board today turned its attention to the most urgent problem awaiting its consideration—movement of the current wheat crop, which already is filling storage bins at farms and export centers alike.

Selection of the eighth member of the board, the spokesman for the wheat producers and marketing interests, is expected today or tomorrow. Completion of the board's personnel will enable the new administrative agency to immediately lay down its program for the next two months.

Following the cabinet meeting today it was learned the delay in selecting the eighth member will in no wise delay any necessary action which the situation relative to any crop might demand. It was pointed out that several members of the board have had experience in wheat marketing and that the absence of the wheat representatives does not therefore necessarily preclude the possibility of action until a decision is reached by President Hoover in the matter of his eighth appointment.

The second meeting of the board today had before it the mid-July crop forecast of the department of agriculture, which offered hope of a smaller world crop than had been heretofore anticipated. A world crop 325,000,000 bushels short of last year's production was declared probable in the department's report.

"Should the world's supply turn out to be as indicated, the average prices of all classes of wheat in the United States would be increased above the present levels," the survey said.

"The price of No. 2 hard winter wheat at Kansas City in the past year has averaged a little over $1.12 per bushel. A reduction of about 200,000,000 bushels in the world's supply might be expected to raise this average to about $1.30 per bushel, or within 5 cents of that figure."

"The world's area to be harvested now seems likely to be no larger than last year."

Against this factor, however, the survey set the present large carry-over stocks.

"The accounted for world's carry-over of wheat on July 1," the report said, "appears to be from approximately 100,000,000 to 125,000,000 bushels greater than last year, when it amounted to about 420,000,000 bushels. Practically all over the increase is in the United States."

On the basis of present domestic crop forecasts, "corn prices are likely to be well maintained until the approach of the new marketing season next fall. Farm prices of corn at the beginning of the new crop year may average about 80 cents a bushel, while prices of No. 3 yellow corn at Chicago may average about 90 cents per bushel."

President Hoover has turned the entire farm rehabilitation program under the new $500,000,000 marketing bills.

"I invest you with responsibility, authority and resources such as have never before been conferred by our government in assistance to any industry," the president told the new board at the initial White House meeting yesterday.

The selection of James Stone, of Lexington, Ky., representing the tobacco industry on the board, to be vice-chairman, was ratified at the morning session.

SOUTHERN CROSS TO CIRCUMNAVIGATE
GLOBE BY AIR

New York, July 16.—(U.P.)—Captain Charles Kingsford-Smith and C. T. Ulm, conquerors of the Pacific in their tri-motor Fokker monoplane Southern Cross, probably will attempt to complete circumnavigations of the globe by air in a London to New York non-stop flight.

The announcement came from officials of the Wright Aeronautical corporation who have received a message from Kingsford-Smith asking advice on whether the old motors of the Southern Cross will stand another gruelling ocean hop.

The company has cabled instructions for an examination of the motors to their European field service engineer.

FINE DOCTOR FOR SPEEDING TO BEDSIDE
OF A DYING PATIENT

Chicago, July 16.—(U.P.)—Dr. I. Val Freedman speeded north in a Haisted street to the bedside of a dying patient when he was stopped by Franklin Martyn, a motorcycle policeman.

"You're going too fast," the policeman told the physician.

"I am hurrying to a very sick patient," the doctor replied.

Then ensued an argument which delayed him 25 minutes in reaching his patient, Dr. Freedman said.

The next day the patient died and Dr. Freedman wrote Martyn a letter extending him an invitation to the funeral.

Yesterday Dr. Freedman was fined $25 and costs for speeding.

WHEAT PRICES
FLUCTUATE WILDLYCHICAGO PIT SURGES WITH THE LARGEST VOLUME OF TRADING IN HISTORY

Chicago, July 16.—(U.P.)—Wheat prices fluctuated wildly here today as the Chicago pit surged with the largest volume of trading in its recent history, and the session developed into a contest as to whether new losses could get in their orders as fast as the old holders made realizing offers.

Yesterday's 8-cent advance was the inspiration for tremendous profit taking, in spite of the fact that there was no abatement in the crop damage news from Canada and the American northwest. At midday future deliveries of wheat were selling from two and five eighths to two and seven eighths below yesterday's close, July bringing $1.35, September $1.39 3/4 and December $1.45 3/4.

Deterioration to the spring wheat crop of northwestern states and the prairie provinces of Canada, due to a long period of high temperatures and light rainfall has been the cause of a world-wide bull movement in wheat, advancing price around 40 cents a bushel since the latter supply of wheat will be about 200,000,000 bushels less than in 1928.

NEW AIR ROUTE IS ESTABLISHED
WITH WINNIPEG

CONNECTS THE TWIN CITIES VIA
WINDSOR AND MONTREAL

PROPOSED LINE BELIEVED TO BE LONGEST AIR TRANSPORT
LINE IN EXISTENCE

St. Paul, July 16.—(U.P.)—Establishment of an international transcontinental air route, to connect Victoria and Winnipeg, through the Twin Cities, with Windsor and Montreal, was announced jointly here and at Winnipeg today by the Northwest Airways and the Western Canada Airways.

The proposed line is believed to be the longest air transport line in existence.

Colonel L. H. Brittin, general manager of the Northwest Airways, and W. L. Brintell, who holds a similar position in the Canadian organization, declared the formation of the line was purely a working agreement or alliance between the two companies and for operation purposes and did not involve ownership or stock control.

Under the agreement the American line will extend its lines from St. Paul to Winnipeg and will make other expansions to enable it to reach the Canadian line at Windsor across from Detroit.

The Western Canada Airways which now operates from Montreal to, and Montre la to Halifax, plan to extend its lines to Victoria.

ALMOST TURNED THE TRICK, BUT—

According to the police, Paul D. Schooler, hands before face, confessed at Annapolis, Md., to substituting for Henry Sherwin Rupp, left, of Long Beach, Cal., in examinations for U. S. Naval Academy. Rupp had passed the mental tests, but was found to be color blind and unable to pass the physical. He was allowed to be re-examined and at this time is said to have hired Schooler to take the exam for him. The shift was detected when Schooler could not answer some intimate family questions and their arraignment on charges of attempt to defraud the government followed.

Ottawa, July 16.—(U.P.)—The crew of the amphibious plane 'Untin' Bowler, wrecked by ice while engaged in an attempt to fly from Chicago to Berlin by easy stages, probably will have a lengthy wait before leaving Port Burwell, Labrador.

The government has no ship in the vicinity and the steamer Beothic, which leaves soon for the Arctic on its annual northern mission, is not scheduled to call at Port Burwell. It was intimated today, however, that the Beothic might be ordered to pick up the three stranded Americans, Parker D. Cramer, Bob Gast and Robert Wood.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

July 16, 1904

The sad news was received in the city this afternoon of the death of Judge J. G. McGarry of Walker. He died at the Fergus Falls hospital. He was one of the leading attorneys of this section of the country and was looked upon as one of the most influential business men of Walker. He was well known in the city, a member of the Brainerd Lodge B. P. O. E.

The mayor has appointed H. T. Skinner, Prof. T. B. Hartley and Mrs. John N. Nevers members of the board of library directors. Under the new law relating to public libraries, which went into effect last year, three directors were appointed for one year, three for two years and three for three years. Rev. A. N. Carver, Mr. Hartley and Mrs. W. A. Fleming were appointed for the one year term and upon Mr. Carver's departure from the city, Mr. Skinner was appointed to succeed him.

The effect of the big packing house strike which was felt immediately in all the large cities of New York, Chicago, Kansas City, etc., will not affect Brainerd to any great extent.

W. A. M. Johnston returned today from Winnipeg where he has been visiting for a short time.

Dr. and Mrs. Werner Hemstead have returned from Walker where they went to attend the meeting of the Upper Mississippi Valley Medical society and to take an outing for a day or two.

The Brainerd baseball team left this afternoon for Little Falls where they will play tomorrow.

Jolson's "Singing Fool" A Triumph

A remarkable demonstration of the emotional power of Al Jolson is furnished in "The Singing Fool," the new special production in which he is presented by Warner Bros.

Though Jolson's stormy dramatic rendition of popular ballads has undoubtedly been an important factor in causing the public to acclaim him as the world's favorite entertainer, he has always been considered first and foremost as a comedian.

And yet, "The Singing Fool" is not a comedy—having few comedy moments whatever. It is a drama of the most intense pathos—a moving story of the utmost emotional depth, in which Al, though gay and light-hearted in the beginning, is brought at length to the depths of despair.

Jolson's supporting cast includes two leading ladies in the persons of Betty Bronson and Josephine Dunn, and other prominent roles are played by Reed Howes, Arthur Housman, David Lee, Edward Martindale and Robert Emmett O'Connor. The screen story was written by C. Graham Baker from the play by Leslie S. Barrows.

Al Jolson in "The Singing Fool" comes to the Peoples theatre at Crosby July 16, 17, 18 and 19.

As to Water Rights

There are all sorts of legal questions involved in the matter of the control of water. All navigable waterways belong to the public. Ponds and brooks belong to individuals, subject to state regulations.

Congress has repeatedly refused to take any action toward recognizing a national anthem. Army and navy regulations, however, and a war-time proclamation by President Wilson give that honor to "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The Brainerd Air Meet

THE Brainerd Air Meet gives every assurance of being a successful undertaking and of reflecting great credit on town and field. It has gained momentum until J. O. Engel, general manager of the Air Meet, is assured that in entries and performance the fliers will be of the best and their flying of the highest order.

A wealth of attractions has been secured. Throughout Central Minnesota Brainerd promises to be the focus of all eyes Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21. It promises to make this whole section airminded and to give the cause of aviation such impetus as to bring Brainerd to the attention of all aviators and airplane companies.

It will aid too in establishing Brainerd on permanent air lanes which will bring business to this section. A fishing trip in the Brainerd Lake Region, traveling by air to Brainerd, is now no longer a novelty, but an accepted procedure. Attending conventions in the Brainerd Lake Region, flying to the Brainerd air field and then motoring to the resort is no longer theory, but has been reduced to accepted practice.

The gathering of all these planes from the big 18 and 14-passenger planes to the single seaters will show conclusively the capacity of the air port and the permanency and efficiency of runways, etc.

We hope all Brainerd will show by its attendance at the air field Saturday and Sunday, July 20 and 21, that it believes in supporting aviation and putting Brainerd on the air map of the world.

Brains Plus Teeth

SOME one remarks that what we need to allay the crime wave is not teeth but brains. Brains plus teeth is what we want, says the Sherburn Advance-Standard.

We might just as well face the truth that most of our criminals are not ignoramuses.

If we were just dealing with uneducated, uncultured and downright ignorant criminals, then it would be perfectly proper to talk about sending them off to college rather than to the gallows. The criminal who does the most harm is the one who is the brainiest. He is naturally a criminal and a crook and to develop his faculties is just to make him more proficient in his nefarious activities. Education works two ways—it helps to make a good man more proficient in the things that are worth while, and on the other hand it helps the one of a criminal bent to become more efficient in his skulduggery. Hence it is foolish to maintain that keener development of brains will cure the crook. And it is just as foolish to maintain that we need more brains rather than more teeth in dealing with the criminal. Divine justice demands that the guilty suffer the consequences of his crime. Moral and civic justice must be predicated on this premise or it fails. It is utter folly and a sheer waste of time to try and fix up a coddling code for the modern criminal and think to get by with it. It is being attempted, but it is anything but a screaming success, as indicated by the crime news.

Picnic Season Here

WITH the advent of hot weather the picnic season has arrived with all its attendant pleasures plus a few vexations. Every one knows the difficulties that surround the commissary department, the job to keep the butter palatable when it is inclined to run away; the friendly companionship of various edibles which get together when the car shakes; the invasion of the ant army determined to eat their fill; the absence of chairs and the cramped position necessary to eat at the "table" oftentimes spread on the grass, etc.

But in spite of many of these drawbacks the cause of picnics thrives, be it the home party in a Ford or the large gathering at some lake.

The average supervised picnic provides more and better accommodations than its humble competitor. In the big picnic, well managed, seats and tables are often provided, coffee and ice cream are furnished and the culinary business proceeds in well regulated fashion.

But no matter how presented and carried out, the picnic thrives and it has its worthy points, drawing people to the great out-of-doors, dropping formality and bringing about a hearty good spirit of fellowship.

Every large picnic usually has its program of sports and these are as hotly contested as any Marathon of the Olympics of old.

West Flight Always Hazardous

THE Europe to America flight across the Atlantic continues to present hazards which the best of airmen appear unable to surmount easily. The heavy headwinds consume gasoline beyond previous calculation.

Man's progress on the trail of aviation was marked with new disaster and mishaps in the week end just passed.

Major Louis Idzikowski, the daring Polish aviator who set out so confidently from Le Bourget field at Paris, was killed in an explosion after his plane crashed in the Azores, enroute from Paris to New York, and his companion, Casimir Kubla, was injured.

Coste and Bellonte, driving the competing plane in the air race across the Atlantic, were unable to weather the headwinds and turned about, landing in Paris.

Up north the Chicago Tribune's plane, the 'Untin' Bowler, came to grief in the ice pack. Luckily no one was aboard when she was crushed. And so the pioneering trail for short ocean hops from Chicago to Berlin, via the extreme northern route, must rest for a period.

Newspapers Grow in Popularity

A SURVEY of the nation's reading habits by the American Library Association and the American Association for Adult Education has revealed that 95 per cent of America's literate population read newspapers, 75 per cent buy magazines and 50 per cent delve into books.

Only 5,000,000 of an estimated 121,000,000 persons in the country cannot read or write.

When people read the papers almost to the exclusion of other reading matter, it is clearly evident that the printed message of an advertiser is scanned too.

The expression, "I see by the paper," is no idle truism.

The advent of the family daily is as much an accepted step in household routine as the coming of the iceman, the butcher boy, the grocery delivery man, etc.

Post Office Head Proud Of His Culinary Prowess

Will Pay $5,000 to Person Finding "String" in His Rarebit

POSTMASTER GENERAL WALTER F. BROWN, head of "the greatest business institution in the world," as the United States Post Office Department has been called, takes great pride in his ability as a cook. His piece de resistance is Welsh Rarebit and there aren't any strings attached to it when he makes it. In fact, he defies anyone to find a string in it, and is willing to pay $5,000 to the successful person.

Cooking is second nature to the Postmaster General. Therefore it wasn't unnatural that Brown should have had a kitchen installed alongside his suite of private offices with serious intent. It is a small place, but light and airy and large enough to accommodate a stove, electric refrigerator, sink and other equipment.

Of course, the cooking Postmaster is encountering the usual domestic difficulties that befall the monarch of the kitchen. The stove just moved in, and Brown reports that it isn't big enough. He needs one with an oven. Well, you've got to take the bitter with the sweet!

By next fall, though, Brown hopes to have all the equipment he wants, so that he can be cooking lunch for himself and his secretaries when he has time.

Here's the famous rarebit recipe:—

Dice three-quarters of a pound of New York or Vermont cheese. Mix thoroughly with the following: Two mustard spoonfuls of dry mustard; one-half teaspoon of dehydrated horseradish; four teaspoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce; a dash of cayenne, a dash of paprika. Pour this over the cheese.

POSTMASTER GENERAL
WALTER F. BROWN

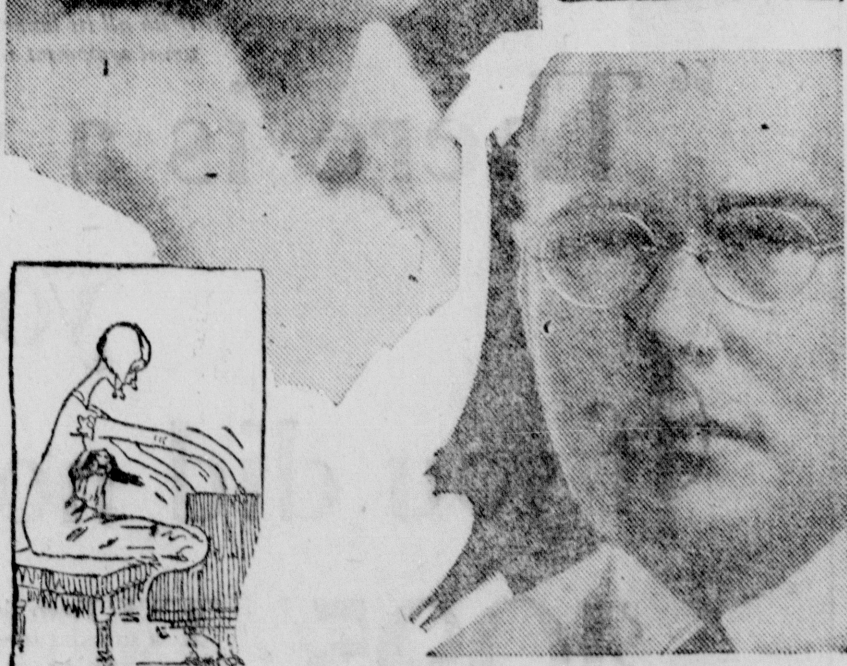

Press the juice of one clove of garlic into a blazer or chafin dish, removing the pulp. Throw in a piece of butter about the size of a hickory nut. Cover the bottom of the dish with near beer.

Place over the fire and add the cheese when the butter melts, adding near beer and stirring constantly until the consistency of thick cream is produced. The mixture must never be allowed to bubble or boil.

When the mixture is entirely melted throw in a lightly beaten egg. Stir until very smooth and beginning to thicken. Pour over toast or crackers on hot plates and serve. That's enough for four persons.

Now, follow these directions word for word, because if you don't and your rarebit turns out to be stringy you can't blame the Postmaster General.

Plebeian Secrets Revealed Of the "Be a Snob" Oracle

Bearing out Prof. Robt. Rogers' advice to college graduates about being a snob to get ahead, Edythe Baker, left above, American pianologist, at her press agent's suggestion, adopted a formula of snobbery which made her the toast of London society, and, incidentally, won her a blue-blood bridegroom. Below is a caricature of Miss Baker depicting her in the days when she was just a vaudeville performer. Below is the Massachusetts Institute of Technology professor who astonished his pupils with his iconoclastic advice.

Watch Tongue For Signs of Illness

Your tongue is nothing more than the upper end of your stomach and intestines. It is the first thing your doctor looks at. It tells at a glance the condition of your digestive system—and physicians say that 90 per cent of all sicknesses start with stomach and bowel trouble.

A white or yellowish coating on your tongue is a danger signal of those digestive disorders. It tells you why the least exertion tires you out; why you have pains in the bowels, gas, sour stomach, dizzy spells.

And it's a sign you need Tanlac. This good old reliable medicine has helped thousands who were physical wrecks. See how the first bottle helps you.

Tanlac contains no mineral drugs; it is made of barks, herbs and roots—nature's own medicines for the sick. Get a bottle from your druggist today. Your money back if it doesn't help you.

Saving miles of walking

Can you imagine what shopping would be if there were no advertisements?

Suppose your list of needs included a morning dress, a pair of tan pumps, a set of those little silver salt and pepper shakers, some bath towels and a new awning for the porch. You would want each article, of course, in a particular color or shape or style; each at a price within a certain range. How would you go about finding them, with no advertisements to rely on?

Probably you would start at the "likely" stores and keep on and on, tramping up and down aisles, questioning sales people and floorwalkers, till your nerves were frazzled and your feet were sore.

Instead, you can sit down with the paper at home and find out in a few minutes just what stores are featuring the things you need. You know they will be dependable goods, at fair prices. With the advertisements as a guide you can plan your route, get your shopping done early, and have time for a movie or a chat with your friends.

Women who stay young use the advertisements to save steps.

LOUGHRAN AND BRADDOCK TO CLASH FRIDAY

LOUGHRAN SAYS IT WILL BE HARD TO MAKE 175-POUND
WEIGHT

HOPES TO GAIN HIS STRENGTH
BACK BEFORE ENTERING THE RING

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 16.—A few pounds of flesh seem likely to determine the winner of Thursday night's 15-round bout at Yankee Stadium between Tommy Loughran, the light-heavyweight champion, and James J. Braddock.

Completing his training at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., today, Loughran faced the prospect of drying out tomorrow in order to get inside the divisional weight limit of 175 pounds by 2 P. M. the day of the fight.

"It's going to be hard but I'll do it," Loughran told the United Press. "I don't think it will hurt me much and I'll gain all my strength back before I enter the ring."

Around fluster circles today Loughran's difficulty in getting inside the weight limit was taken as an indication that a new champion will be crowned Thursday night.

Loughran weighed 185 3/4 when he fought Ernie Schaaf in Boston on May 24 and the champion admits he was in perfect condition that night. So Loughran will have to take off more than 10 pounds by 2 P. M. on Thursday to make the weight.

Over the 15-round route Loughran must have speed, stamina and strength to stave off a young, strong, hard-hitting opponent who believes he can win by a knockout.

Remarkable recoveries have saved Loughran from being knocked out before, but when he got off the canvas twice in the first round and saved his title against Leo Lomski, Tommy had no trouble making the weight.

Braddock can hit harder than Lomski and is stronger. If Braddock ever finds himself in the same situation Lomski was in on the night of January 6, 1923, a crown is almost certain to change hands.

Both fighters completed training today with light workouts, Braddock confining his last workouts at White Sulphur Springs to road work and Loughran in light exercises at Hoosick Falls.

Braddock weighed 171 1/2 after yesterday's workout and plans to enter the ring weighing 173.

In his last appearance in the ring before the fight Braddock scored two knockdowns in four rounds of sparring yesterday. The challenger floored Allentown Joe Gans and Joe Hanlon with left hooks to the head. Hanlon was badly hurt.

Betting odds have taken a sudden drop within the past few days, coming down from 2 1/2 to 1 on Loughran to virtually even money.

Braddock may enter the ring the favorite.

LANDIS AWARDS JOE GIARD TO THE WASHINGTON CLUB

Chicago, July 16.—(U.P.)—Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, has awarded pitcher Joe Giard to the Washington club of the American league. The commissioner's decision ended a dispute between Washington and Atlanta of the Southern league. It was said the Senators would send Giard to the San Antonio club of the Texas league. The pitcher has been playing with St. Paul of the American association pending outcome of the dispute.

THE WHITE SOX STAR WORKED THE FULL ROUTE IN THAT TWENTY-ONE INNING TILT WITH DETROIT IN MAY. UHLE, THE OPPOSIN' PITCHER TOILED TWENTY FRAMES AN' THEN STEPPED OUT FOR A PINCH HITTER.

By QUIN HALL

THE longest baseball game ever played since the big leagues were established, was called on account of darkness at the end of the twenty-sixth inning. The final count was 1 to 1, and it was played on May 1, 1920, between Brooklyn and Boston.

Leon Cadore was on the mound for the Robins and Joe Oeschger did the flinging for the Braves. They both stuck to their tasks for the entire twenty-six rounds. The game lasted three hours and fifty minutes. Oeschger allowed the Robins only nine safe socks, while Cadore yielded fifteen.

Both pitchers suffered from the strain of going the Marathon distance, and, while both of them remained in the big leagues for several years afterward, the books prove that they were never as effective after their long afternoon as they were before. Cadore and Oeschger both admitted afterward that during the late innings their pitching arms kept feeling heavier and that the ball was like an iron weight.

In a game played at Chicago last May, the White Sox and Detroit Tigers battled through twenty-one innings, the longest game played in the majors since May 17, 1927, when the Chicago Cubs took twenty-two innings to defeat the Boston Braves. George Uhle and Ted Lyons were the opposing pitchers in this year's Marathon. Uhle pitched twenty innings of the long tilt, retiring for a pinch hitter. Lyons went the entire distance.

This game lasted three hours and thirty-one minutes, the Tigers winning, 6 to 5. Detroit nipped Lyons for twenty-four hits, while Lyons was punctured for eighteen. But, unlike the other long distance game, Uhle and Lyons seemed to suffer no ill effects from their long grind. Uhle won his next start and Lyons has been turning in his regular quota of victories.

After the game, both agreed that they were tired and the Detroit star probably felt the strain more than the trailer Lyons. Uhle is a harder worker on the hill than the White Sox twirler and Lyons, former star of Baylor University, has an easy pitching motion which proved an asset over this distance.

But it is just as well that these long games don't happen regularly or the pitching staffs of the big league teams would be walking around with their salary wings in

Modern Home Movement Benefits Children

MODERNIZATION CREATES MORE PLEASANT HOME LIFE

Keeps Children Off of the Street

The home modernizing movement pays big dividends to the father and mother of a growing family as the welfare of the children is benefited by the improvement in the home.

The average person when discussing the benefits of modernizing the dwelling rarely consider the matter from this angle. That the children are benefited is accepted in a casual way. But that the influence of the remodeled house may have a tremendous effect on their thoughts and lives is often overlooked.

Home Becomes Desirable

The modernized home is usually an attractive one. The pleasing exterior lines of the dwelling, the conveniences of the interior and the comfortable, homey spirit that prevails go deep into the lives of the occupants. It draws the children closer to the hearthstone and makes them feel that home is a desirable place to be.

One of the problems of the parents is to keep the children off the street. Not only is there danger to life and limb in these days of fast and reckless driving of pleasure cars and delivery trucks, but it is on the streets that the growing child is thrown in contact with undesirable playmates. With susceptible and sensitive mind, the child picks up and makes for his own unpleasant expressions and distorted ideas. The cruder things of life are always learned away from home.

If the child can be kept from bad company during these formative years, the problem of the parents becomes easier.

Home Must Be Pleasant

Home must be made a lure to the children. It must be made a pleasant place to play in. It is the duty of the parents to see that the surroundings of the children are as inviting as possible.

Unconsciously the children contrast their homes with those of their playmates. They prefer to play at the home with an inviting lawn and a well equipped play-room. If the home has these attractions it immediately becomes the rendezvous of the neighborhood. The children play at home under the watchful eye of the mother. She can guide them and see that their associates are desirable.

Thus the modernized home has its advantages in bringing up the children. It aids in moulding their character, correcting their manners and in giving them the refining influences of life.

Steel Casement Windows Washed From Within

The average housewife has a dread of washing windows, due to a fear of falling when perched on the outer window sill.

The installation of steel casement windows in the modernized home makes window washing safe because both sides of the window can be washed from within the room.

Hinges Are Extended

The hinges on the casement window are of the extended type. When the ventilator of the window is swung outward a space of at least four inches is left between the frame and the casement ventilator. Through this space the arm may be thrust when the window is open for washing. The average ventilator is 20 inches wide and its far edge may be easily reached.

Many housewives believe that the smaller panes of the casement are actually easier to clean than the large ones of the ordinary window. The small units of area really aid the window washer by concentrating efforts on a small space.

The fixed lights over the out-swinging casements can be easily washed from the inside of the room as there are rarely more than one row of lights above the transom bar.

Thousands of homes are now equipped with steel casement windows and the judgment of all owners of casemented houses is that window washing is no longer an unpleasant job but one of the minor tasks of the household.

Here's a Charming Love Nest Ready for Some Honeymooners

A young couple could not ask for a more inviting home than the one pictured above. It grew from the bare, ugly cottage below. Even a little cottage may be modernized successfully as these pictures show.

CEDAR LINED CLOSETS WILL DRIVE OUT MOTHS

Many housewives when remodeling the home insist that the clothes closets be lined with cedar.

The fragrant odor of cedar is distasteful to moths and they will not seek shelter in closets which are lined with this wood.

Many clothes closets are finished off in the conventional white plaster which, while looking sanitary and neat, has no real value as a safeguard against the destruction of clothes. Moths, seeking a dark spot where they can lay eggs, are not repelled by the ordinary closet. In fact it is an inviting spot.

The cost of lining the closet with cedar is not excessive. In truth, it is a positive preventative against the destruction of clothes and the cost of the work should be regarded as insurance. A few dollars for lumber and the time of a carpenter is the only cash outlay. Yet hundreds of dollars worth of clothes may be saved as the result of this expenditure.

Closets that are not cedar lined may be made moth-proof by means of sprays. This method, however, is not enduring and is at the most a makeshift.

You can find drab, depressing houses like this on almost any street in town. Yet they can be lifted out of the ordinary class into the favored group of charming homes by modernization.

A vacuum cleaner organization has recently perfected an attachment which blows a chemical into the air of the closet. This attachment is fastened to the body of the machine, then the cleaner is placed in the closet and the current turned on. At the end of five or ten minutes the closet has been moth-proofed. The chemical used has a balsam-like odor and is in no way obnoxious. It does the work, but like the spray is not intended to be a permanent moth-preventative.

ONCE JUST A COTTAGE NOW CHARMING HOME

Some home owners have the mistaken idea that the home modernizing movement is for the larger houses only.

To their minds the small cottage cannot be given the graceful lines of the two-story houses. It will not pay, in their estimation, to modernize the more humble appearing dwelling.

Yet nothing is further from the truth. As the illustrations on this page show, the little cottage on the side street contains just as many opportunities for modernizing as does the more pretentious residence. And the chances are that the cost of making improvements is remarkably low.

Many Houses Like This

Look at the two illustrations on this page. Every street in the average city or town contains a house similar to that shown at the bottom—it is a plain, common-place dwelling—ugly in its straight lines and lack of adornment.

When the owners of the building called in experienced building supply dealers and their recommendations were carried out, a remarkable change had taken place.

Changes like these are not expensive—although a detailed list soon is impressive.

Drains Enrich the Soil

The vast sandy plain on which Berlin is situated provides a soil adapted to the working of the famous Berlin drainage system, established in 1870. Pumps send sewage from the city by radiating mains to surrounding farms, 43,000 acres of which are under municipal control. All are under satisfactory supervision.

Perfection in Samplers

The old-fashioned sampler consisted of a square of perforated canvas, the rows of perforations being equally spaced. Designs were stamped on the canvas and filled in with different colored worsteds, the stitches forming little "x's." On the finest canvas this would almost give the effect of a painting.

Gulf Stream Temperature

The temperature of the Gulf stream is several degrees higher than that of neighboring oceans. Water has a remarkably high heat capacity. It is four times that of air, five times that of earth. The water of the Gulf stream carries its accumulated heat, derived from the tropical sun, for a long time and to great distances, giving it out gradually to the air.

MY SULLIVAN FAVORITE TO WIN FROM ANDY DIVODI

St. Paul, July 16.—(U.P.)—My Sullivan, St. Paul, considered one of the best welterweights in the northwest, today was a slight favorite to win from Andy Divodi, New Yorker, in their 10-round fight tonight at the Hippodrome.

Sullivan, a terrific puncher, was said by critics to have shown fine boxing skill during the last of his workouts and it was believed he would slow down the shifty Divodi by his slashing body attack.

The New Yorker has made a host of backers by his excellent showing during the past year, however, and the odds against him were quoted at no more than 10 to 9.

Monument Moves

The sway of the Washington monument is rendered perceptible by a copper wire 174 feet long hanging in the center of the structure and carrying a plummet suspended in a vessel of water. At noon in summer the apex of the monument, 550 feet above ground, is shifted by expansion of the stone a few one-hundredths of an inch toward the north.

DEMAND WORK START ON THEATRE BY AUGUST

Council Votes to Automatically Revoke Licenses August 1 Unless Work Underway

STORMY SESSION ENSUES

W. R. Hiller States That Interests Intend to Take Care of Brainerd as Soon as Possible

A stormy session in which all persons involved were unanimous in that Brainerd needs better theatre facilities but undecided as to the length of time to further allot interests governing the expansion of local theatres ended by the city council going on record last evening demanding the start of improvements in this city by August 1.

Should action be delayed on either the Lyceum or Park theatres beyond the specified date, the council voted unanimously that the two licenses be automatically revoked.

Definite action regarding the ultimatum issued to F. and R. officials two weeks ago to appear at the next meeting and show cause why the license of the Lyceum theatre should not be revoked because of unsatisfactory ventilation as based in a report by Dr. John A. Thabes, Jr., city health officer came after more than an hour's discussion.

The resolution as adopted on motion of Aldermen W. J. Lyons and W. J. Hill follows:

"That Finkelstein and Ruben be given to August 1 to remedy the unsatisfactory conditions as shown by reports on file regarding the Lyceum theatre and to show some visible signs of construction at the New Park theatre or the license will be automatically revoked at both theatres."

The reports read by Mrs. E. T. Fleener, city clerk, regarding the condition of the Lyceum theatre and on which the council based its action were those from City Engineer R. T. Campbell, City Health Officer Dr. John A. Thabes, Jr., and City Fire Inspector H. McGinn.

Dr. Thabes' report again emphasized the need of better ventilating, stating that conditions as now exist in the circulation of air at the theatre constituted a health hazard.

City Engineer Campbell's report was a review of the structure and layout of the building. He stated that the building was constructed properly to meet the requirements of the city building code but criticized the structure of the exits. In this respect he wrote:

"In my opinion the use of the Lyceum theatre as a theatre is hazardous on account of conditions shown and especially the design of its exits. At both main and rear exits conditions exist which tend to make obstructions when a crowd attempts to go out quickly."

The written report of Fire Inspector H. McGinn follows:

"I have inspected the Lyceum theatre as to its hazardous conditions as per your request and find it to be clean and free from all rubbish. However there are conditions about the building that I do not approve of. First, that fires in moving picture shows generally occur in the booth which in the Lyceum is directly over the main exit which would leave the Sixth street exit the only means of escape and the floors of this exit is below the street level which should not be. In my estimation the building should be condemned as a theatre."

Alderman W. J. Hill who has been a conscientious objector to the theatre conditions in this city for the past year lead the fight last evening to demand immediate action in the correction of conditions.

He was in favor of revocation of the license of the theatre immediately on the grounds that the Finkelstein and Ruben officials had received sufficient warning.

Attorney C. A. Ryan, president of the Chamber of Commerce who also has taken an active lead in the fight to secure better facilities urged the council to take a definite stand and to prevent any further "stalling" by the theatre interests.

W. R. Hiller of local theatres pleaded the cause of the theatre owners and explained the situation regarding the acquisition of F. and R. stock by the Paramount Famous Lasky Corporation. He said the deal was now official and that the new operating heads of the Northwest Theatres would correct the conditions here at the earliest possible time. He said that this city would have secured a new theatre several months back but for the reason that the transfer deal was pending. He said that improvements were not started by F. and R. because had they so been done they would not have received any additional consideration in the purchase price than what is quoted at the present.

"I believe we are now headed for some real action," said Mr. Hiller, "the company has been delayed considerably by the transaction but I believe that work will be started at the New Park in a short time. Now that the transfer is known I can say that the delay was caused by it. We would have liked to have announced our plans earlier but we were directed to maintain secrecy about the transfer. I would ask that you give the company a reasonable time to start operations before taking drastic action. There are seven or eight employees at the Lyceum theatre who depend on the theatre for their livelihood. I ask that this feature be also considered."

Mr. Hiller added that shipment of Vitaphone equipment has already been made to Brainerd by the Western Electric Co. He said that 22 boxes of the equipment valued at $15,000 has been stored in the Park theatre for future use here.

Mr. Ryan said he was talking for business interests in this city and as president of the Chamber of Commerce in qualifying himself to talk on the question.

"I take this view that since the purchase of F. and R. interests has been officially announced we are just about at the place we started from one year ago. Our work with F. and R. has gone to nothing. We must now start in over again with the new corporation. Definite promises were made to me by F. and R. officials that we would have a new theatre by September. There has been little done to assure us that the work will start this summer. Now that we have reports of investigations by officials that the Lyceum is undesirable we are justifiable in revoking the license."

Alderman Hall: "After exhausting our patience for one year I believe we are justified in asking for the immediate revocation of the license."

Alderman Lyons: "I will second the motion if we give them 30 days."

Alderman Hall: "They've had sufficient notice. We've been humiliated long enough. Why should we stand by and swallow a lot of this mush they are handing us. Every organization in the city has gone on record demanding improved conditions. Are we going to stand for all these excuses handed us. If we have any backbone at all now is the time to show it."

Alderman Christ Elvig said he would support Hall's motion if a 30 day notice was given.

Alderman Hall: "Suppose tomorrow night fire broke out in the Lyceum theatre and 100 people burned we'd feel sorry we didn't take action to prevent it."

Mr. Hiller stated that the building was inspected regularly by the state fire marshal.

Mr. Ryan claimed that the Park theatre also was a hazard, that the roof might collapse at any time.

Mr. Hiller stated that plans for construction call for the complete gutting of the Park theatre.

FETES FOLLOWERS OF GLEAM AT GULL

Mrs. E. P. Slipp Entertains Members at Summer Home; Enjoyable Meet Held (Contributed)

The Followers of the Gleam were entertained by Mrs. E. P. Slipp, Saturday, at her summer home, Gull Lake. After partaking of dinner a short program was carried out and Mrs. Slipp in extending a welcome expressed regret in losing the active membership of Kathryn Albright and Edith Heald, Kathryn having been a faithful member since the first organizing of the society in 1922 and Edith in later also being interested and faithful.

In reviewing the roll call it was noted at 15 consecutive meetings Kathryn Carmichael came in ahead being present 14 times. She as president had charge of the meeting at which the Secretary-Treasurer Doris Geist in giving the yearly report, showed the receipts to be $74.75 and the disbursements $72.05 leaving a balance on hand $2.70.

Short and interesting messages relative to the different fields where the society's interest is centered were as follows:

Fenchow Hospital, China— Sylvia Ericson.

American Scripture Gift Mission— Kathryn Carmichael.

The American Mission to Lepers— Edith Heald.

A boy, a pig and a leper—Doris Geist.

Margaret Springer.

The School Boy Gospel League— Viola McKay.

The White Queen of Okoyong— Kathryn Albright.

Mrs. Slipp presented the society with a "Pete Pig Bank" the history of it being given by the reading of Doris, and which we feel is worthy of notice being as stated: "Wilbur, a Kansas boy, learned that his mother had set her heart on raising $250.00, so that ten poor outcast lepers in Siam might have a comfortable home for a year, but only $225.00 of this amount had been received."

"With three dollars given him to do with as he liked best, he conceived the idea, to buy a pig, feed it and sell it for enough to support the tenth waiting leper. The pig was bought, placed in the back yard and named Pete. Children of the community brought scraps, ears of corn and everything they could find to help the pig grow, even men became interested one man carrying a pail of swill three blocks one morning. Later the pig was sold for $25.00, which amount was sent to W. M. Danner, general secretary of The American Mission to Lepers, New York, which he forwarded to Siam where a boy leper was tenderly cared for and where he heard of the Saviour who loves all lepers.

"One day some men in an office in Philadelphia heard about the Kansas boy and his pig and it made them wish to have a pig too to care for a leper and so later a little pig in the form of a pig bank was brought into that office and the men named it "Pete No. 2" and with a slot in its back they began to feed it coin so they could support a leper too.

"There are now more than 70,000 of these pig banks 'rooting' for the two million lepers of the world. Into every state of the United States, into European and Asiatic countries, into homes and churches of every creed Pete has found his way, and like the Mission for which he works, he is international and interdenominational." We feel this account would not be complete without stating that the Kansas boy, Wilbur, who loved the Lord Jesus enough to do without all of the things he could have bought for himself with his three dollars, choosing rather to invest in a pig for the worthy purpose of helping to rid the world of leprosy, is now a young business man in St. Paul, Minn., engaged in the engineering profession and he and his mother maintain their active interest in the work for lepers."

The afternoon was employed in walking, bathing and swimming it being an ideal day for such activities.

Lunch was served at 6 o'clock, Mrs. W. C. Mannis and Mrs. R. L. Geist assisting in serving.

Eight members and nine visitors were present.

Any one wishing to assist in the pig bank movement, which is becoming widely known and popular, can do so by either personally giving a "scrap" to Pete at his present home, 302 Juniper street or by leaving the "feed" with Doris Geist, 314 North 4th street.

Comedy of Errors Disclosed in Municipal Court Resulting Over Fracas

Walter Spencer Gives One Time Buddy Black Eye Believing Latter Chicken Thief

Walter Spencer and Joseph Funk are buddies again, thanks to a black eye and a third degree assault charge.

A comedy of errors was enacted on the west bank of the Mississippi river Saturday disclosed in municipal court yesterday afternoon when Spencer was arraigned on the charge of assault in the third degree against Funk.

Here is the story:

Spencer had been losing chickens by the prowling about of Dusty Rhodes boys. He decided to put a stop to it so when he saw a bewhiskered man loitering about his land Saturday afternoon near the shore of the Mississippi he chased him off his property, a fight ensuing on a road which resulted in Spencer administering a black eye to his opponent.

Yesterday afternoon the two met again in municipal court, this time the bewhiskered man of the west Mississippi episode being close shaven. There was an exclamation of surprise on the part of the two men.

"Why it's Walt," said the one.

"Joe, is that you," said the other.

Forgetting the charge that brought them into court the two launched into reminiscences of the days when they worked together in the Northern Pacific shops here.

Judge J. H. Warner called for order.

"I don't want to bring charges against Walt," Joe pleaded.

And so it came about that through the kindness of the judge the charge was dismissed although Spencer was obliged to pay the costs of court.

Funk told the court that he was not

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

Phillip Edison is host at a night-club party to his just-recently-divorced wife and Oliver Sewell, sportsman and Don Juan. Edison presumes that Sewell and the divorcee are to be married.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER III.

Edison repaired to the lounge, decorated excessively in the Louis XV period as conceived by a real estate entrepreneur from the Bronx. He lit a cigarette in his impatience and paced up and down the too-thick rug. Finally, weary, he slumped into a gilt armchair and tried to relax, but he couldn't. He kept his head turned to the entrance, watching for Sewell to be ushered in through the bronze door. A half hour passed. Then an hour. Suddenly the telephone operator raced into the lounge.

"You wanted to see Mr. Sewell, sir?" He was obviously laboring under considerable excitement, and he did not wait for a reply. "Mr. Sewell's been murdered!"

"Murdered!"

"Yes—sir." The operator swallowed. "I've just telephoned the police. Are you a friend of his?" Edison paused.

"Why—yes," he replied finally.

THE MURDER.

INSPECTOR MARX was that type of police officer who, in mystery plays, is made the butt of ridicule. His grammar was primitive, his conversation inelegant, he had no scintillating powers of deduction to present with the flare of the showman. In short, his general equipment fitted him for the police station rather than the stage, which, upon due reflection, was not as incongruous as it may seem.

Ten minutes after the news of Sewell's violent end was telephoned to headquarters, it was relayed to Marx's unpretentious flat in the East Nineties.

"Robbery?" demanded the Inspector of Detective Sergeant Carraway, who was telephoning from Sewell's flat.

"No. Not a sign of it. Looks like straight murder."

"All right. I'll be up."

Marx put down the telephone, and his big red face seemed sour with displeasure.

"What's up, precious?" demanded Mrs. Marx, who was big and fat and housewifely.

"Killing."

"Who?" Mrs. Marx displayed the usual interest of a spouse in her husband's labor.

"One of those damn society murders." Marx reached for his collar (size seventeen) discarded during an informal but stout dinner, and then swore at a recalcitrant stud.

"Fellow named Sewell. Bridge player . . . mucky-mucky-muck . . ."

"Oh, it'll go big in the papers."

"Yea," grunted Marx. "It'll go big in the papers. They'll be yelling for my scalp!"

"Oh, I don't know, honey. You may get a good break on it."

"A good break on a society murder? Show me one of them where we did anything with it. Why, we're helpless. Those society people can't be dragged down to headquarters on suspicion. You gotta treat 'em with kid gloves. It ain't like a regular killing, where you don't know where you're at."

Marx now tugged at his coat. He believed that crime was the exclusive business of the underworld, and was always annoyed when amateurs forced themselves on the attention of the police. In the underworld there were known criminals and stool pigeons. Every crime had its guinea pigs. But in these amateur affairs of the emotions a man worked behind a curtain.

IN the street, Marx plunged into the subway and was deposited a few doors from the skyscraper apartment where Sewell made his home.

A uniformed policeman greeted him.

"Sergeant Carraway and some detectives are upstairs. The Assistant Medical Examiner is coming soon, sir."

Marx nodded.

"Keep the reporters out," he commanded. Marx distrusted reporters. "And keep all the guys that work in the building here. Nobody's to leave."

The officer saluted. Marx stepped into the elevator cage.

A tall youth of twenty-four was his pilot, and under his nervous hands the cage literally leaped to the twenty-sixth and top-most story.

There was, Marx found, only one apartment on the floor, and that was Sewell's. It was an extraordinary apartment, designed by an extraordinary man, for Sewell had personally supervised its construction.

Marx entered from the elevator through a stout green door, and down a long corridor, passing a kitchen, a butler's pantry, and a butler's bedroom and bath. Then Marx found himself in the huge living room of a duplex apartment, with a miniature minstrel gallery gracing one side of it.

Sewell had covered the four walls of this giant room with clear mirrors that flashed into Marx's bewildered eyes, and made him blink.

From this room of mirrors, through a narrow door, you came upon a terraced garden, wide enough to hold several chairs, a table, and a garden lounge. Here one could look out upon a city of lights and stone, and a sky that was not quite so black and smudged and mottled as it appeared from the streets below.

Returning to the mirrored room, you mounted the walnut stairway to the gallery, and found there a master bedroom and bath. The bedroom had four separate closets, which struck the practical-minded Marx as wasteful luxury.

It was in the room of mirrors that Sewell was found. He was seated in a low blue and white chair, his head bent, hands folded, facing the mirror of the left wall. He was dressed for dinner, and the blood on his shirt bosom told Marx he had been shot through the heart. As Marx surveyed him, he had an uneasy feeling that other dead men were in the room for the mirrors echoed the murder from each wall.

Marx moved nearer to Sewell. He was struck by the unusual calm of the still face. It was as if the man had been murdered in his sleep.

"Pretty, ain't it?" breathed Carraway, who stood behind Marx. "Yea," drawled Marx. "Now—let's see. . . ." He paused reflectively. "Who found him?"

"His butler, valet or whatcha call 'em. Russian, or something."

"Where is he?"

"Jim!" Carraway bawled to one of the detectives. "Bring in the slob!"

The detective brought Sewell's sole servant from the corridor into the room. He was a little over forty, with high cheekbones, and rather small black eyes. He carried himself well; not so much with the faintly subservient manner of the good domestic as a man who had known wealth.

"WHAT'S your name?" growled Marx.

"Ivan Stupin."

"Good." One of the detectives grinned.

"I know nothing—nothing at all," the butler protested.

"You found him, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"At two o'clock. I have already told the gentlemen. He gave me the evening off. He was going to a party. And I went to Elizabeth-town where I have my friends, and I did not come home until two o'clock. Then I opened the door and put on the light, and I am thinking of nothing, and I go into this room when—"

The butler turned to look at the seated corpse, and paused.

"You found him in this chair?"

"Yes. So I go to the elevator, and make excitement, and that is all I know."

"Mmm. . . . Was this your night off?"

"No, sir, Mr. Sewell asked me to take the night off."

"Did he often ask you to take the night off?"

"Yes."

"Why?"

"I do not know."

"How long have you been with him?"

"Six months."

"Where were you before?"

"Russia."

"Mmm. . . . What did you do in Russia?"

"I was an officer in the Guards before the revolution." The man seemed a little more certain of himself then. Marx looking at him could believe he had been a soldier.

"Now, listen," began Marx taking out a cheap cigar and lighting it, "was there anything taken that you know of?"

"I do not know," the butler waved his hands.

"Was the place out of order, any?" snapped Marx.

"No. Just like always."

"You found him sitting in his chair?"

"Yes."

"Dead?"

"Yes."

"When did you leave the house?"

"At six o'clock."

"And you came back at two?"

"Yes, sir."

"So he was murdered between six and two, ha?"

"I do not know."

"No. You don't seem to know a helluva lot," Marx glared at him. The butler puzzled him.

"You got no idea where he went?"

"No, sir."

"You know who his friends are, don't you?"

"No, sir. He never told me."

"Oh, he didn't!" Marx sneered. "I suppose nobody ever called on him, did they?"

"Yes, sir. They did."

"And when they called they never gave you their names—did they?" Marx was obviously trying to trip the butler.

"No, sir. They didn't."

"They didn't? Say—who were his visitors—all women?"

"Yes, sir. All women."

"You mean to say a man never called here?"

"No, sir. He met his gentlemen at his club. There was only for women."

"Well—what do you make of that?" Carraway asked Marx.

"Nothing much," Marx grunted.

"This guy Sewell musta been a bear for women. I know that before I started out. Now look here—let's go over the doors. Here, you!" This to the butler.

"Did you touch any of these doors, when you got in?"

"No, sir."

"Nothing wrong with the front door, was there?"

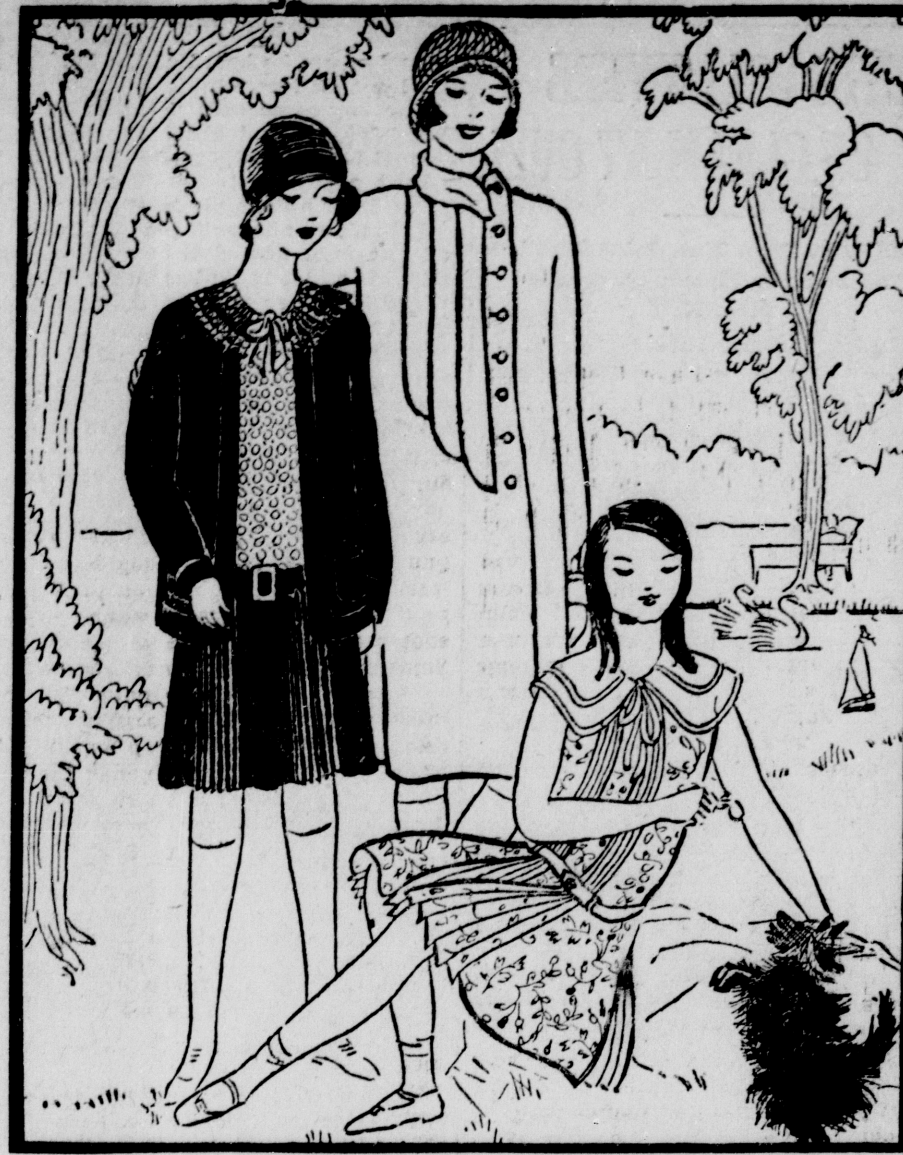

"No, sir. I opened it with my key."

"All right. Then you got in here. This door to the terrace was locked?"

"Yes, sir. I remember, I was nervous and I noticed, it was the same as usual. Mr. Sewell never went out there. It was always locked."

Clothes for Tots

Copy Today's Mode

Brevity, Tendency to Flare, Sleeveless, Features; Fur for Summer.

That innocent period when all children under the age of twelve were democratically bundled into white sailor suits is hopelessly at an end. And it is one of the most surprising facts of our immediate times to find students of the fourth grade expressing definite ideas as to chic, observes a fashion authority in the New York World. Although yielding to none in horror of the crepe de chine underwear advertised for the child of six, one may keep well within the bounds of good taste while dressing a little girl in a miniature of the current mode.

You will find that the stores which are in sympathy with these ideas have conscientiously followed the grown-up trends of the season in designing dresses for the little girl between the years of eight and fourteen. The most outstanding feature of all children's clothes at the moment is their brevity and tendency to flare—an idea taken over complete from those fascinating infants who are seen feeding the swans in the Luxembourg garden. Crisp, short and sleeveless dresses are ordered for all little girls who have not reached the dignity of the "awkward age," which sets in, presumably, around fourteen.

This is notably a season of cottons and linens for grown-ups, and children are indulging in these fabrics to a notable extent. Solid, colored pastel tennis dresses without sleeves are shown in plique, batiste, voile, dotted swiss and handkerchief linen, and are distinguishable from the grown-up tennis dresses only because their waistlines continue to hover away down around the hips, and because they lack the sophistication of the bare back.

The Classic Cotton Dress.

For the little girl who is still struggling with the horrors of the multiplication table, the classic cotton dress is the English smock of batiste with colored smocking about the yoke and linen collar and cuffs to match. Much more distinctly of this season are the pastel sleeveless volles with plaited round collars of lingerie and the little dresses of the Empire type, which suggest the high waistline of the year by means of a deep yoke, outlined in a contrasting shade. One charming dress of the latter type is of yellow handkerchief linen with large red polka dots, no sleeves and two long, red streamers that float decoratively behind.

Another material which is being favorably viewed by supercilious young things this year is gingham of the plaid or printed variety. Sleeveless one-piece dresses of pink and white or blue and white gingham are being much used, but the most important of the gingham are fetching two-piece affairs in which the skirts button on to the blouses in the pleasant manner of the Oliver Twist suits of little boys. The most popular dresses of this type have tops of white batiste with frills down the front and skirts in which the Highland tartans appear in the gingham.

The same type of dress appears several places in various fabric combinations. One of the most beguiling of the lot is a dress in which a pastel plaited pique skirt buttons on to a waist of dotted swiss—that old standby for the sub-deb, which is most attractive in white with colored dots.

Aside from the polka dots, which are appearing on quite as many of the children's costumes as on those of their elders, all sorts of printed patterns are being used. The floral effects on handkerchief linen or dimity and the Liberty lawns are charming as a choice for the little one-piece dress is of french voile, with a wide cape collar of printed handkerchief linen in white; a mad medley of red and white tiger lilies appear and a string belt of the same gay design.

For play around the garden or at the beach overalls are being offered the child which are replicas of the ones her mother may wear if she is daring and slender enough to do so. These appear in bright colored broadcloth or soudanette and are worn with broad-brimmed straw hats of the farmer-in-the-dell variety.

Fur Neckpiece Popular.

It is true that furs are no longer a necessity demanded by every sort of street costume, as they have been in seasons past, and that scarf collars on Parisian models are more frequent than in former years. But for that little tulle which you need for chilly days and for the silk two-piece or three-piece ensemble, you will find that the fur neckpiece is quite as much of a necessity as in less austere seasons.

If there is one maddening trait of the potentates who determine what we shall wear, it is their capricious way of determining that a new and very expensive fur shall be the thing every season. Last year both ermine and silver fox were heralded on all sides. Silver fox is now being urged on their customers by the most extravagant and perfumed of the shops, which turn a cold shoulder on the formerly aristocratic ermine.

The smartest fur pieces for the next few months will be of sable or silver or blue fox, the latter, please, in the single form only.

If you elect to wear sable, however, it is another story entirely, as these scarfs are rightly made up of a luxurious collection of the Russian species of the animal. Six or even eight sables are used to make a single scarf.

Another small animal of great popularity this season is the marten, both the familiar brown marten and stone marten, which is an attractive pale beige and very chic. A great number of these skins also are required if you wish your scarf to avoid that skimpy look, and for the woman with a taste for luxury, which has not yet reached the proportions of a mania, a scarf of these furs is the very thing.

A surprising development of recent years has been the decrease in the demand for storage for fur coats during the summer months. Now that the very lightest of furs are usually used for winter coats, there is really no reason why they should not be kept on hand for chilly summer evenings.

Capes for Summer.

In case you are considering buying a wrap at this season, capes are considered better than coats for summer wear and you can depend on any reliable firm to help you select a coat now that will be in perfect taste next winter.

A recent exhibition brought to light some very interesting developments in the world of jewelry design. Until now most of the elaborate work in setting has been sent to Europe but craftsmen in this country have made such remarkable strides, as shown in this collection, that we need no longer fear to patronize your neighborhood jeweler.

Another interesting development in the field of precious stones is the trick of matching up plain precious stones to form long strings of beads. The more beautifully matched the stones the finer the example is considered to be. A deep jade string is of especial charm as well as one of lapis lazuli, while the loveliest possible gift to the very blonde young lady would be a string of aquamarines cut in graduated cubes and divided by fine rondels.
